Meet the New Executive Director of Caleb

The nonprofit organization Caleb Interfaith Volunteer Caregivers is hosting a “Meet the New Director” afternoon coffee on Thursday, January 30th. Stop by anytime between 2pm to 5pm to speak with their new leader Timothy Carignan, network with Caleb staff and its board members, and meet Caleb clients and volunteers. The event will be located at the Caleb office on the ground floor of the McIntyre Apartments building at 16 Highland Street in Whitefield, NH.

In operation since 1995, Caleb Interfaith Volunteer Caregivers provides much needed services at no-cost to seniors 60 and older to increase their access to healthcare, enhance their independent living skills, and reduce their isolation primarily through transportation and friendly visitation services. It currently serves seniors in the towns of Bethlehem, Carroll, Dalton, Groveton, Jefferson, Lancaster, Littleton, and Whitefield and desires to expand services to other nearby communities in the future. Caleb is a 501(c)(3) and operates solely from the donations of the towns, churches, and individuals who believe in its mission and are most affected by its outreach.

For more information, please reach out to them by calling 603-837-9179 or visit their website at calebcaregivers.org. You can also email the director at calebcaregivers@gmail.com or the volunteer coordinator, Karen Lebrun, at calebcoordinator@gmail.com. We hope to see you at the coffee.
